EXCLUSIVE
INTERVIEW
& PICS

Gold coast DJ brothers Matt and Chris Stafford are certainly living the sweet life. They're paid to party, allowed to drink on the job, and their nine-to-five is more like midnight to the early hours, so they get to sleep in after a big night of rubbing shoulders onstage with some of the world's hottest musicians.

'We're certainly not going to complain about getting up and going to work,' chuckles 28-year-old Chris, who knows just how good his life is, not only providing tunes to audiences of thousands in clubs and music festivals around the globe, but doing so with 'the best' sidekick imaginable, his older brother Matt, 30.

'We work together and live together. We figured out, I guess, that we like each other,' Matt shares.

Rarely are these boys apart. In fact, the only time they aren't within earshot is when Matt is with his model girlfriend of seven years, Brooke Evers!

'I manage to get him to myself sometimes,' Brooke, 27, laughs. 'But having Chris around is pretty normal, although I do want him to find someone,' she says of the single Stafford brother. With the guys planning on relocating to America within the coming weeks, and their hectic schedule in the lead-up – including playing the main stage at the Future Music Festival around Australia – there's little chance of either boys settling down.

On a rare day off, the duo invites OK! over to their sanctuary, their parents' place on the Gold Coast, for a relaxing day by the pool. There's no sign of the globetrotting, party-happy superstars we witness on their hit Fox8 reality series, The Stafford Brothers. Rather, it's fresh fruit smoothies, low-key laughs and talk of gym appointments. The only giveaway that the lads lead a double life is Chris's croaky voice from a gig played the night before, but Matt helps him out with that. Yes, these guys even finish each other's sentences...

You guys are pretty much inseparable...

Matt: When we were growing up, Mum and Dad moved to Australia and we stayed together in New Zealand at boarding school, so that's what made us closer.

You never get sick of each other?

Chris: No, but Matt likes to be with Brooke sometimes.

Matt: I do. I guess that's the only time we're apart, when I'm with Brooke.

You even spend your downtime together?

Chris: Funnily enough, yes.

Matt: We go snowboarding and surfing.

Chris: When we get a free moment, we like to train in the gym, it keeps us sane.
